SHORELINE WARRIORS

The Environment Conservation Youth Club group in Mahuva, Gujarat, is taking proactive steps to protect aquatic animals by cleaning fishing nets from the beach area. This photo story showcases the efforts of a group of young volunteers who have pledged to keep the Bhavani beach clean and litter-free. They understand that discarded fishing nets can be extremely dangerous for marine creatures, and they make it a priority to remove them from the beach. Despite the presence of dustbins, the beach is often littered with trash by thousands of visitors during the weekends. These dedicated youths clean the beach every week, not only picking up litter but also removing any discarded fishing nets. Their efforts set an inspiring example for others to follow and demonstrate the importance of individual responsibility in keeping public spaces clean and protecting the environment.
