

SINGLE PHOTO REPORTGE

Ansh Gupta (22), CEPT, Ahmedabad, Gujarat

THE GREY WORLD

Buried life under the Concrete

While working on a construction site for my internship, all I saw and breathed was concrete. This completely shocked me and made me fear for the future generation because all we were leaving them with were these enormous, tall structures made of concrete. It is upsetting that we don't consider nature, who gave us life, as we rely on many natural resources to build these structures and take a lot from them without giving anything back. After some time, we will all get buried under them.